BE IN TIME.

The voice of wisdom hear,
Be in time, be in time,
To give up every sin
In earnest, now begin,
For the night will soon set in,
Be in time, be in time.

Ye aged sinners hear,
Be in time, be in time,
Your sins are moving fast,
Your dye will soon be cast,
Ye aged men make haste,
Be in time, be in time.

Though late you may return,
Be in time, be in time.
Though late you may return
You're not too old to learn,
While the lamp holds out to burn,
Be in time, be in time.

Ye who are young in years,
Be in time, be in time.
You say you're in your bloom,
And far from the dark tomb,
But mind your day will come,
Be in time, be in time.

Back-slider, dost thou hear,
Be in time, be in time,
Thy sinful course forsake
And thyself to prayer betake
Thy deathless soul's at state,
Be in time, be in time.

Should you the work delay,
You're undone, you're undone,
Should you the work delay
And squander life away,
Death will be a solemn day,
Be in time, be in time.

Oh! should the door be shut,
When you come, when you come,
Should God in thunder say,
Depart from me away
Oh! 'twill be too late to pray,
Be in time, be in time.

The Slave Law Givers.

Hon. A. K. McClure, of this State, who has been sojourning during the winter at Columbia, the Capital of South Carolina, has written a long letter to the Chambersburg Repository under the above title. It so forcibly exhibits the extraordinary changes that have taken place in the civil polity of South Carolina since the war, that we transfer it to our columns:

Here the Slave is now the Master; the Bondman is the Law-giver. Here has been fulfilled that singular prophecy ventured by Jefferson soon after his retirement from the Presidency. Speaking of the crime of slavery, he said, "that considering numbers, native and natural means only, a revolution of the wheel of fortune, an exchange of situation, is among possible events, and it may become probable by supernatural interference! The Almighty has no attribute which can take side with us in such a contest."

I walked leisurley along the broad streets of Columbia, to the imposing, but still unfinished capital of South Carolina. The softest breeze of Northern spring-time greeted me, and the beautiful magnolia, mock-orange, firs, and other evergreens, seemed to proclaim perpetual summer. The streets are crowded with motley groups of whites and blacks, and on the modest elevation that fixes the centre of the main avenue stands the point of attraction—the capitol with the Legislature in session. I entered the vast rotunda, and passed on to the legislative halls, to witness the deliberations of the novel Legislature of reconstructed South Carolina.

The Senate Hall, designed to echo the eloquence of the Hamdens, the Rhetts, the Hammonds, and other distinguished sons of chivalry, has been fitted up in a modest elegance, and 18 whites and 15 negroes fill its chairs.—As a body, it is but little below some Northern Senates I have seen, in point of intelligence, and among its members are able men of both races. Mr. Corbins, the President, is a very able lawyer and debater, and perhaps the commanding intellect of all the contributions from the North to the statesmanship of South Carolina. He is well appreciated, too, as a Senator, U. S. District Attorney, and codifier of the laws, and fills all with credit. Senator Jillson, another son of New England, is a gentleman of culture, and is State Commissioner of Education, as well as legislator. Senator Leslie is an ex-New York Democrat and ex-Democratic legislator from Brooklyn. He is now a Republican Senator, and State Land Commissioner. These doubly or trebly honored gentlemen are not singular, however. There was a lack of white material when the wheels of government were put in motion, and it became an agreeable necessity for a number to accept multiplied offices. Mr. Moses, Speaker of the House, is Adjutant General; and Mr. Nagle, Controller General; Mr. Tomlinson, Auditor General; Mr. Elliott, Assistant Adjutant General, and Mr. Stolbrand, Superintendent of the Penitentiary, are all commissioned State officers, and members of the House.

The most notable negro in the Legislature is Senator Wright. He is a full-blooded negro, of medium size, with a finely chiseled face and handsomely developed head. He came here with the certificate and seal of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, as an Attorney-at Law. His features and form are fairly Caucasian in all save color, and he speaks fluently and forcibly. He is eminent for his integrity, and devotes himself intelligently and earnestly to the advancement of his race and State. On the right of the Chamber sits a tall, gaunt, full-blooded negro, black as mid-night, with the regular Southern negro dialect, and the awkward gait of a field-hand. He is Senator Nash, the representative of the capital district, and successor to Wade Hampton. He is quite intelligent although entirely uneducated, and was, in olden times, the best hotel porter in Columbia. Senator Cain sits near the centre aisle, and boasts of no discount on his African blood. He is a tolerable debater, and an ardent preacher of the Methodist persuasion. A little in front of him, sits Senator Swalls, a light quadroon, and a hasty graduate of the country free schools of the Cumberland Valley. He is doubtless remembered by many of the citizens of Chambersburg. He writes a beautiful hand and speaks quite intelligently.

The hour of noon is indicated by the plain mahogany circular clock above the door, and the Senate is called to order. A very plain jet-black, white chokered man stepped up on the Speaker's stand and called the Senators to their devotions. A more simple, beautiful and appropriate prayer I never heard, than Chaplain Adams offered for his dubious flock, and stricken Commonwealth. Routine legislation then followed, and I turned to take a look at the popular branch of the Legislature. It sits in the spacious library room of the new capitol, temporarily appropriated to the purpose, and a large gallery is usually crowded with negroes, watching with intense interest the maiden efforts of their respective brethren, as law-makers. Speaker Moses is in the chair, and he presides with great dignity and ability. He is an Israelite, and an enthusiast. From an extreme rebel he has transformed himself into an extreme Republican. As a staff officer of Governor Pickens, he was accorded the honor of hoisting the Confederate flag over Fort Sumpter, when Anderson surrendered, and now he presides over the first Republican Legislature. His father was rebel commissioner to persuade North Carolina to join in secession, and now he administers Republican laws in hearty sympathy, as Chief Justice of the State.

The Speaker soon vacated the chair, and a stout, finely formed negro took his place and presided very gracefully. He is Mr. Whipper of Charleston—a Michigan waif that came with war and lodged, when the army was disbanded. His face is round, full and well-drawn. If covered with a white skin and flaxen hair his features would be more than ordinarily good. He is the Patrick Henry of the House as an orator; but his want of culture mars the beauty of his sentences. He is a lawyer, and aspires to the vacant seat of the Supreme Bench, as does Senator Wright. Mr. Elliott, a Massachusetts negro of full blood, is perhaps the ablest disputant and parliamentary leader on the colored side of the House. I saw him lead in a desperate struggle of two days, in support of a bill that was fought desperately by fillibustering, and he managed it with great skill until he covered his efforts with success. Capt. Small, the hero of the "Planter" during the war, is also a member. He is a stout, burly mulatto, and his face indicates considerable intelligence and great decision of purpose. Pervis, is a neat, slender mulatto, and hails from Philadelphia, where his father is well known as one of the most successful financial princes of his race. The son is the negro Beau Brummel of the House—dresses very tastefully, and parts his soft waving hair in the middle. He is an active and influential member and speaks well. De Largo is a dumpy, little quadroon, a fluent but not very forcible talker, and has a passion for the floor. He was a steward in the rebel navy during the war. Cook, of Greenville, is a very genteel mulatto, and a quiet but efficient member. He is the son of his former master, and long struggled to free himself from bondage. He saved fifteen hundred dollars, by sixpences and shillings earned after labor hours, and offered in vain for his liberty.—Finally the rebellion brought Emancipation, and his savings gave him a comfortable home.

The House is nearly two thirds negroes who were once slaves, and every possible shade is to be found. There are half a dozen members who would readily pass for pure whites, but they were South Carolina slaves only a few years ago. Mr. Tomlinson, a Philadelphia Quaker, and an offshoot of the Bureau, is the ablest white man on the floor, and one of the most vigilant and faithful members in either branch. Close to him sit Gen. Dennis and Mr. Jenks, two able political leaders of the House. In the front row is the patriarch of the Legislature—an old native, white preacher, his head bleached by the frosts of over seventy winters. On each side of the Speaker sits a bright mulatto clerk, and close by is Mr. Etter, the reporter. In the gallery sits the first negro of South Carolina, with his sprightly quadroon wife by his side. Mr. Cordoza, the Secretary of State, is a robust, full-faced mulatto, and everything about him indicates the highest culture. His father and master was an officer of customs in Charleston, and gave him a complete education in Scotland. He was regularly ordained as a minister, and was pastor of a New England congregation for some years before the war. Gen. Howard has urged him to accept a professorship in the Lincoln University, but he wisely prefers to serve his long oppressed race in South Carolina. He is highly respected by all classes, and exerts a most salutary influence in all matters pertaining to the interests of the blacks. If he desired to fill the Executive Chair of his State or a seat in Congress, either would be conceded to him without a serious struggle; but for the present he is content to continue as Secretary of State. It is not improbable, however, that on the 4th of March, 1871, Mr. Cardoza, once the slave of South Carolina, may appear at the bar of the U. S. Senate to qualify as the representative of the chivalry in the first legislative tribunal of the nation. A. K. M.

Rearing Children.

We take the following from Mrs. Hunnitee's diary in the Hearth and Home:

Mrs. Lee.—It is time to pass to the discussion of our regular topic for the afternoon: The best modes of forming habits of virtue and piety in our children. I am glad to see so large a number of mothers present who have grown children. In the multitude of counsellors there wanteth not wisdom.

Mrs. Burt—[A strict religionist; but her oldest boy is one of our Busydale profligates].—I used to think I knew just how to make boys grow up into good men. There's Sammy, my oldest, when he was a little shaver, I allers made him git his Sunday school lesson every Saturday arternoon, and go to meetin' mornin' and arternoon, besides Sunday-school; he knowed his catechism by heart from "What is the chief end o' man?" to the end of the book, and all the ten commandments, and I made him go to prayer-meetin' with me reg'lar, though he didn't want to go; but Solomon says, "Train up a child in the way he should go," and I tried to train him, but he don't go in that way now, and I can't help feelin' as though I'd made some awful mistake somewheres. I never see him—and I don't git to see him often nowadays—but I never do see him but I don't talk to him about the concerns of his soul, and ask him if he ever thinks about his latter end.

Aunt Betsey.—Mebbe that's the reason you don't see no more of him—Folks don't want to be forced to go to heaven. If you talk to him 'bout his dog or his horse, or praise the set of his coat or the cut of his whiskers, mebbe he'd give you a chance now and then to talk about his soul. Now, I've got a brother that is a wicked, worldly man, and ever since I growed up and thought about things, I've made up my mind that it was religion too much that ailed him. Why's long ago as I kin remember, mother was allers talkin' to him 'bout the gospel ministry, and goin' missionary to the heathen, and how he enjoyed his mind. "Hang me, Bess," said he one day, "ef I ever set my foot in a meetin'-house when I git to be a man: it's nothin' but psalm singin', prayer-meetin', and solemn, pious kind of talk from mornin' to night, and I don't want to go to heaven if that's what we've got to do forever and ever." And there Johnny's stuck ever since, an' I can't help thinkin' that if he hadn't been stuffed with religion all the time, or what mother called religion, he'd a been a better man than what he is.

Mrs Lee.—Let us hear something on the positive side of this question.—Aunt Betsey tells us "how not to do it." What has Mrs. Smith to say on the other side?

Mrs. Smith.—I have three boys that certainly give me nothing but pleasure, though it's not for me to praise my own. There's William, my oldest, who is surgeon in the navy, and John, who is practicing medicine, and George, who is a farmer—all good boys and members of the church. We always had family prayers, to be sure, and went to church regular when they were little, and we tried to teach them to be honest and industrious, and keep the ten commandments, and follow Christ's sermon on the mount. They always loved their home very much, and didn't seem to care about going off with other boys, and now they seem to enjoy talking with each other and with their sisters better than associating with young company about town. I don't hardly know what kept them from being wild, like some other boys I know of, unless they loved their home so much and didn't want to hurt their father's feelings and mine by being bad. We never talked about religion so very much, but we tried to act consistent.

Mrs. Blake.—I think Mrs. Smith has hit the nail on the head this time. Example speaks louder than precept. If parents make their children happy homes and show the beauty of piety and virtue by consistent Christian lives, by evenness of temper, and heavenly sweetness of disposition, they will win what they cannot command. Love is the most potent element in training children, though other influences must be likewise brought to bear on them. When my children were small, I asked an old minister why he thought the sons of clergymen so often turned out badly. "Because," was his reply, "they place the church before the family, when God has placed the family first." If we wish to insure success in rearing our sons and daughters in the love of virtue, we must place our duties to our families first.

Mrs. Lester—I think the whole subject of piety and virtue should be presented to children in attractive and engaging form. Let the Bible be read as a story-book to young children, and explained so they can understand it, and as they grow older continue to invest the sacred page with new interest by comments drawn from travels in the Holy Land, from the manners and customs prevalent in the East, from maps and illustrations; thus the hour of morning devotion may be made the most interesting and profitable of the twenty-four.

☞ Matrimony is—hot cakes, warm beds, comfortable slippers, smoking coffee, round, red lips, kind words, shirts exulting in buttons, redeemed stockings, bootjacks, happiness, etc.—Single-blessedness is—shoet-iron quilts, blue noses, frosty rooms, ice in the pitcher, unregenerated linen, heelless socks, coffee sweetened with icicles, gutta-percha biscuits, rheumatism, corns, coughs, cold dinners, colics, rhubarb, and any amount of misery.

Punishment in Schools.

Two deaths, one at Chicago and the other in New York State, have resulted lately from whippings in school, and suits have been instituted against teachers in various parts of the country for severely flogging children under their charge. It seems that the "spare the rod spoil the child" doctrine, which originated a very long time ago, is still pertinaciously adhered to in this enlightened age and country, notwithstanding it has been shown that children in schools, at least, can be more advantageously managed by means of other than corporeal punishment.—Whatever argument may be urged in favor of Solomon's doctrine, it should be practiced, if practiced at all, by the parents of the offending juvenile. Few men or women are willing to have their children beaten by strangers, however they may delight in beating themselves. It might be shown, we think, that flogging children at all has a brutalizing tendency and engenders in the youthful heart far more of evil passion than it expels. It is generally inflicted in anger, or from a revengeful feeling, and evil must beget evil. There may be instances in which corporeal punishment is necessary and beneficial, but in most cases other punishments might be substituted with advantage to all concerned. There can be no question that excessive flogging is brutal, as well as brutalizing, and ought not to be tolerated even when administered by a parent; certainly not when done by a stranger.

Corporeal punishment has long been entirely banished from the public schools of this city, which are among the best and best governed in the world, and we see no reason why it should not be banished from the schools of other cities—even Chicago. Human nature is about the same everywhere, and what answers so well here would answer equally well in other parts of the world. It is far better to stimulate than mortify the proper pride of a child, and better to win than to alienate its affections. If one be found perfectly incorrigible under proper treatment, it is not likely that it could be reformed by means of physical torture. The best way to dispose of such children is to banish them from the school.

But, happily, such children are very scarce, as school experience in this city has proved. Here almost every pupil appears to take delight in obedience and in excelling in his or her studies, and all this without the aid of Solomon's rigid rule and rod. Patience and sound judgment in the teacher are far more potential for good than the birch or the ferrule.—Phila. Day.

HOME.—The following from an exchange, will meet with a hearty response from many hearts: Bless the old people, say we! What should we do without them? Does not a man feel better and stronger in the battle of life for having a gray-headed old father and mother under the shelter of some brown-caved farm-house far away? Does the millionaire's heart leap so high, at the sight of the pines and oranges that daily decorate his table, as does when the barrel of red-streaked apples comes from the country home—apples from the old hillside orchard, carefully picked out by a spectacled mother, and directed in a shaking hand by the kindly old man? Ah! those apples have a flavor of home and childhood! What an event it is to the dwellers in brown stone mansions and marble-fronted palaces, to have the old folks come up from the country on a visit, with their old-fashioned ways, and antiquated snuff-colored garments, and horror to all new inventions and dangerous novelties! We can but smile when they blow out the gas, and sit as far as possible from the furnace registers for fear they shall burst, and start every time the speaking tubes are used, and regard the waterpipes as fearful and wonderful things. Such things make them feel that their day and generation are over, even more than the white-headed little grandchildren, and the silver threads in the locks of the son or daughter who was their "baby" once. Yet there is something beautiful in their simplicity—their utter ignorance of the marvels of city life.

The dear old folks! As long as they are alive there is always an untiring ear for our tales of joy or trial, a ready excuse for our foibles—there is always some one to whom we are still "the children." It is only when the accustomed fireside chair is empty, and the violets growing over the gentle eyes, that we feel the bitterest pang of heart sickness that earth has to give. When the old folks are gone we are alone, though a thousand friends sit around our hearth stone.

☞ A good story is told of a Tioga county merchant who agreed to take a farmer's oats at 40 cents a bushel if the latter would let him tramp the measures when filled. The farmer agreed to it. The buyer paid for sixty bushels and next day went after them. The farmer filled the half bushel, and the merchant got in and tramped them down. Whereupon the farmer poured the oats so compressed into the bag. The merchant protested, and demanded that the measure should be filled up after tramping. The farmer informed him that there was no agreement of that sort, but that he might tramp down the oats to his heart's content after they were measured.

Sam Patch--His great Leap at Genesee Falls.

The Elmira Gazette has reprinted some extracts from a paper issued in that village forty years ago, describing the exploits of Sam Patch in jumping at Genesee Falls. A successful leap made October 12, 1828, was thus described:

"Sam has made his great jump. The day was lowery and rainy. However, the number of 300 persons assembled on the island to witness the feat, the Canadian shore was crowded. To view the platform erected for the fearless Patch from the Biddle stairway, did not appear so grand, as the platform reached only about two-thirds the height of the bank; but to descend to the margin of the water in the gulf beneath, and there look up at the perpendicular ladder made, you imagine that it would require superhuman powers to accomplish such an enterprise. Sam ascended the ladder, and remained on the top about ten minutes, resting himself for the leap, during which he was repeatedly cheered by the spectators. At length he rose—every eye was bent intently on him, he waved his hand and kissed the star-spangled banner that floated gracefully over his head, and then precipitated himself like an arrow into the flood below. 'Twas a matchless and tremendous leap. He very soon reappeared and swam to the shore with great ease. Then it was that a painful and unpleasant yet indescribable sensation was driven from each breast by the flood of joy which succeeded on seeing that he was safe. Then it was that the benumbing spell which had reigned from the moment he arose on the platform, was broken by the burst of the voices of congratulation."

The jumping hero made his last fatal leap November 13, 1829, thus chronicled:—

"Sam Patch is no more! He made his last leap from a scaffold erected on the bank of the falls this afternoon."—The staging was elevated 25 feet. He sprung fearlessly from it, and descended about one-third of the distance as handsome as he ever did. He then evidently began to droop; his arms extended, and his legs separated; and in this condition he struck the water, and sunk forever! It was a fearful leap, and fearfully it terminated. The prevailing opinion is that he became lifeless ere he reached the water. He had drank fearfully in the morning, but was not apparently more overcome than he was on Friday last. It was truly a solemn scene, where so many thousand were witness to an immolation which had its origin only in an effort to satisfy the craving appetite of human curiosity. Sam's last request, I understand, was that the funds collected should be sent to his mother, if his terminate fatally. His body has not been found. The height of Genesee Falls, from which he jumped, is one hundred feet. The staging was twenty-five feet above the falls. The distance which he decended was therefore one hundred and twenty five feet."

Sam Patch was a native of Pawtucket, R. I., where some of his relatives still reside.

HISTORY OF A KNIFE.—The editor of a Massachusetts paper was recently shown a knife, of which he tells an interesting history. Gilbert D. Streeter, of Shelburne Falls, who belonged to Company E, 27th Massachusetts Regiment, was taken prisoner at Bermuda Hundreds. On his way from Drury's Bluff to Richmond he traded, Yankee fashion, a good knife then in his possession for this knife and a plug of tobacco. The tobacco was soon disposed of, but the knife he kept with him, by skillful management. He was in Libby Prison five days. From there he was taken to Andersonville, where he remained three and a half months. He used the knife for digging a well, as a crow-bar, for cutting wood, and picking hard-tack. Without that knife he thinks he should have surely died. From Andersonville he went to Charleston; thence to Florence, S. C., where he used the knife to cut through ice and for digging a hole two and a half feet deep in the mud and long enough to lie in, in one end of which he had a little fire when he could dig enough roots out of the mud to build one. For weeks he stayed there without hat, shirt, boots, vest or pantaloons. The rebel surgeon would occasionally examine him and say that he had considerable muscle left, and so keep him to waste away and die. When captured he weighed 180 pounds; when released he weighed only 90 pounds. The knife is nearly worn out and worthless, except to the owner, who regards it as a faithful companion and a true Union knife.

A century ago seven vessels loaded with bullion coming from America foundered in a small harbor on the frontier of Spain. Fabulous tales have been told of the value of their cargos, but as yet no attempt has been made to recover them, owing to the great expense and consequent risk of failure. An expedition has, however, been organized in Paris and fitted out with electric apparatus, diving bells, and every known contrivance for recovering sunken treasure. Half of the treasure if recovered goes to the Spanish government.

☞ To prevent a cow from kicking while milking, a correspondent of the "Rural American" says, "Take a linen cloth, wet in the cold water, and just before you commence milking, lay it over her loins wet. Those who have tried it, say that a cow will not kick so long as the cold, wet cloth remains on her back."

Editorial Brevities.

Hon. Peter T. Washburn, Governor of Vermont, died at his residence in Woodstock on the 7th inst.

The United States Supreme Court has decided that all contracts existing prior to 1862 are payable in gold.

It has been determined by the Senate that the old census law, passed May 25, 1850, shall govern the taking of the next census.

A Harrisburg letter writer intimates that Morrow B. Lowry is to be champion of the bill to abolish capital punishment in our State.

Since the negro question is finally settled, the next thing suggested is general amnesty for all rebels—from big Picket to little Lee!

Ex-Judge Strong, of Philadelphia, and Jos. P. Bradley, of Newark, N. J., have been nominated by the President, for Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Hon. John Covode has been awarded the contested seat in Congress, from the 21st Penna. district, and he has been sworn in. The vote was 123 for Covode and 50 for Foster.

A bill is now before the Legislature which provides that the people shall decide by general election, whether liquor may be manufactured and sold within the limits of Pennsylvania.

The temperance men of Washington city are trying to secure a prohibitory law for the district. It is not likely to go through—too many citizens and Congressmen being opposed to it.

Senator Wright, a full blooded negro, and member of the Senate of South Carolina, has been elected to the Supreme Court of that State. For a description of this personage, read Col. A. K. McClure's letter on our first page.

The Democracy in Mifflin county is in a muddle, caused by the fact that a prominent Democrat of the county got a bill passed and signed legislating the commissioners out of the poor house and appointing three persons directors thereof.

It is alleged that it has been the custom of Senators and members, for many years past, to trade off military and naval cadetships for money, and a committee of investigation on that subject is making some of the guilty ones tremble.

A Democrat in the Kansas House of Representatives, while the fifteenth amendment was under discussion, said: "While I belong to the Democratic party, I also belong to the present age." To prove his words, he voted for the amendment.

The Bellefonte Watchman gives a very consoling thought to Democrats, when it says "Thousands of graves all over this earth have been built, that it (Democracy) might triumph, and it will triumph." And is Democracy going to pave its way to glory by grave after grave? If so, we advise those who follow that standard to flee in time.

Gov. Geary has vetoed the Philadelphia Police Bill, much against the wishes of some, and greatly to the approbation of others. All the Republican journals in Philadelphia, except the Press, condemned the bill as a partisan machine to be controlled by incompetent men and purely partisan and personal purposes, at the expense of the peace and property of the public.

The total production of anthracite coal last year was 13,221,386 tons, and of all kinds, semi-anthracite and bituminous on the Atlantic seaboard included, 16,339,014 tons, against 16,054,816 tons in 1868. Including the estimated production of 11,000,000 tons of bituminous coal production in other sections of the Union, the total coal United States in 1869 is put down at over 27,000,000 tons. The total consumption of coal in the United States in 1869 is estimated at little less than 30,000,000 of tons.

GOLD IN ILLINOIS.—The most intense excitement prevails in Clark county, Illinois, in consequence of the discovery of gold in Big Creek, about twenty miles from Terra Haute, Indiana. A lately returned California miner—a miner of eighteen years' experience—has been prospecting in the ravines along the creek, and in every handful of earth he says he has found gold in paying quantities. The people of that section are wild with gold mania, and are leaving all other business to search for the precious metal.

DR. SCHOEPPE DOOMED.—On Monday morning last Justice Read read the opinion of the Court in the case of Dr. Paul Schoeppe vs the Commonwealth. The opinion was to the effect that they could not consider questions of the prisoner's guilt or innocence, and had not been able to discover any error in the record of the Court below; therefore the judgment of the Oyer and Terminer of Carlisle was affirmed.

The Legal-Tender Decision.

The Kentucky Court of Appeals some time ago decided that a contract made before the passage of the Legal Tender act of 1862 must be paid in gold or its equivalent, and not in the paper money created by the United States. This question was brought on appeal before the Supreme Court of the United States, and the decision just made by that body, reaffirming that of the Kentucky court, is of unusual financial importance to the country.

The act of February 25, 1862, known as the Legal Tender act, provides that the greenbacks, or Treasury notes, authorized by the act, shall be receivable in payment of all United States taxes, excises, debts and demands of every kind due, excepting duties on imports and interest on the public debt, and shall also be lawful money and a legal tender in payment of all debts, public and private, within the United States, excepting duties upon imports, etc. Under this law there has hitherto been no practical difference in the payment of debts contracted before the war and those contracted since, but all have been equally discharged in greenbacks. It has been a matter of serious question, however, whether Congress had the Constitutional power to pass an ex post facto law, to decree that a debt which in 1861 was under contract made payable in Spanish milled dollars or gold, should be, at the option of the debtor, made payable in greenbacks in 1862. Judge Chase gives the opinion of that court that Congress had no such power, and that settles the question. The dissenting opinion of three of the Judges, delivered by Mr. Justice Miller, is, however, able, and shows how difficult and dangerous it is for a Bench of nine lawyers, differing with each other, to override the legislation of Congress.

We shall not argue the question of law. That is unnecessary just now, for the question is decided. The effect of the decision on business is the important matter. The reader who has not studied the subject should understand that the Supreme Court does not declare that the Legal Tenders are unconstitutional. It simply decides that paper-money cannot be a legal tender for the discharge of contracts made before the act of 1862. To ascertain the amount and value of such contracts now unsettled would be impossible. The Herald estimates that in New York alone "the principal of the unsettled mortgages contracted prior to approval of the Legal Tender act cover not less than $500,000,000. To this item of New York mortgage alone the decision adds twenty per cent. of value and The Herald estimates that in the total of similar contracts throughout the country the holders gain over $100,000,000 in greenbacks. This enormous shifting of values from the debit to the credit side of business must have a tremendous effect, though not a universal one.

It does not, however, affect contracts made since the act of 1862. If it did we might expect the greatest financial panic of the century. But the Supreme Court has uttered no word which indicates the possibility of its ever declaring that Congress had not the constitutional right to issue paper money of the United States. Upon this subject the opinion of Mr. Justice Miller is conclusive. The paper money of the United States is still a legal tender, though it is not a legal tender in contracts made before the passage of the act.

We anticipate no general disturbance of business from this decision. It is a tax upon a limited though a large class of debtors, to the probable amount of one hundred million dollars in paper money. Its ultimate effect on our finances cannot be predicted.—The Tribune hails it as a step towards specie payments, and if proven to be a safe step in that direction, the country can well bear temporary embarrassment for the sake of future stability. One thing is sure, that we can never return to specie payments without submitting to individual losses and general derangement of business So far, the business troubles of the country have been much smaller than it had reason to expect, and considering the damage of the war, the loss of our commerce and the burden of our debt, the measure of our prosperity is remarkable.

JOHN DECKER, a poor drunkard of Jackson, on the 12th inst., committed suicide in the presence of his family, by taking strychnine while in a state of intoxication. After he had taken poison, and while every effort was being made by the physician to save him some of the most disgraceful scenes were enacted that can be imagined. His brother was also drunk, and making a dreadful disturbance. He ordered the doctor and several visitors from the house, brandished a chair and struck the physician and an old man named Bacon, who was attending on his brother, and finally, in his drunken paroxysms, fell and split his head open on the stove. The drunken wretch, groveling on the floor, with the blood streaming from his face—the crazy suicide, writhing on his squalid couch, the crying woman and screaming children, presented a sight of horror more consonant with some of the miserable dens in St. Giles or Five Points, than with the usually quiet homes of our peaceful city. Despite every remedy and the closest attention, the miserable sufferer died between six and seven o'clock in the evening, from the effects of the poison.

☞Does death follow immediately upon decapitation? This question, which has been often elaborately discussed by physiologists, has recently been brought up anew in Paris by the guillotining of the murderer Trappmann. Dr. Pinel has published a letter upon it, in which he takes the ground that the trunk retains life after the head is separated from it for a long period, though it ceases to have any consciousness as soon as it is emptied of blood. The head, he says, on the other hand, both lives and thinks, sometimes one hour, sometimes two, and three. The brain remains uninjured, and continues its functions until it is benumbed by loss of blood and of the nervous fluid. It sees, hears, and must therefore suffer the most cruel agonies. For this reason, the learned doctor denounces the guillotine as altogether too cruel a punishment even for the most atrocious murderer.

A LITTLE BIT OF ROMANCE.—Early on Friday morning, says the New York Evening Post, a poor young waif, apparently of the past night, with her delicate figure sculptured relentlessly through a thin cotton dress, was found, almost famished, leaning against a lamp-post in a street leading into one of our principal thoroughfares. Her condition having been recognized by a kindly house-maid who had been dusting mats at the door, the wretched sufferer was humanely led into the basement, where, after some time, she was restored to life and animation.

Subsequent inquiries revealed the fact that she was the daughter of once respectable and wealthy parents who lost everything—pride, virtue and fortune—in the wine cup, and who, recently dying paupers had left her on Friday morning without a home, a hope, or a crust in the world. When discovered she was blindly groping her way toward the river, to end her miseries, rather than enter upon a career of shame.

Her touching and simple story reaching the ear of the lady of the house, she was summoned to her presence; when strange to tell, it was ascertained, beyond a shadow of doubt, that she was the only child of a dear friend who had been lost sight of for years, but who, through a singular interposition of Providence, was now restored in the person of her daughter.

A PRIZE SENTENCE.—A prize of two dollars was recently offered to any member of the Connecticut Teachers' Institute who would write and spell correctly the words in the following sentence:

"It is angreeable sight to witness the unparalleled embarrassment of a harassed peddler attempting to guage the symmetry of a peeled onion, which a sybil has stabbed with a poniard, regardless of the innucendoes of the lilies of carnelian hue."

Thirty-eight teachers competed for the prize, but not one successful. Our readers will find it a source of amusement, as well as profit, to give out the above sentence, and see how many mistakes our best spellers will make in writing it down.

☞Chicago papers report that a gentleman of that city, who was stopped a few nights ago when near his residence by two men, who held revolvers to his face and ordered him to "stand and deliver," told them that he had no money, but if they would permit him to depart, uninjured and would call at his office on the following day, he would give them twenty-five dollars apiece. The proposal was accepted, and the blackmailers appeared at the place indicated, received their $25 each and departed, no effort being made by the citizen to secure their arrest.

☞The New York Times published a list of 41 murders and homicides committed in New York during 1869 Of the perpetrators of these crimes, not one has suffered capital punishment I was sentenced to imprisonment for life; 1 for 2½ years; and 2 for 1 year. One committed suicide, and 2 are in the lunatic asylum; whilst 5 are still waiting trial. The question of the murderer of Townsend as to "how many years he would be likely to get?" was a very natural one in the light of such a record.

FELT HIS OWN PULSE.—A good story is told by the Attica, Indiana, Ledger of a physician of that place, who was called upon to visit a sick man after he had himself taken a drop or to too much. Arrived at the bedside he fumbled over his patient a little, and at last got hold of his own pulse which he felt for a minute or two, and then, with customary medical gravity remarked, "Well, there's nothin' much matter wi' you—only a little drunk! I'll go'l bed 'n sleep little'n you'll b'all right!"

☞A young man and his intended bride presented themselves before the City Clerk of Davenport, Iowa, the other day for a marriage license. It was found that the intending bridegroom was under age, and had neither parents nor guardian. In order to make the proceedings regular, the lady suggested that she herself should be appointed guardian. As she was over eighteen, she was eligible, was duly appointed as guardian, and gave her consent that her ward should marry herself.

☞Alexis St. Martin whose side was shot away in 1862 in such a manner as to expose the action of the digestive organs to the eye of the surgeon, and from observations upon whom we have learned nearly all we know of digestion and its phenomena, is still enjoying good health and lives in Cavendish, Vt. Few men have ever done so much for the advancement of medical science, and yet he did it all involuntarily.

A lawyer in Bangor, Me., who wanted to get his Christmas turkey cheap, selected a fine looking one and inquired of the gentleman from the rural districts if it was young, and being answered in the affirmative, asked him if he would take his oath of it.—Nothing loth, the poulterer assented and the oath was administered by the sprig of the law, who then demanded a dollar for his fee.

Birmingham, England, has just had her tenth annual dog show, numbering thousands of canines valued at $100 and upward. The rent of the hall for the exhibition was $2000; $4000 were given in prizes, and the receipts were some $15,000, the admission on the aristocratic days being $1 25. One of the dogs exhibited has been sold for $2250 in gold.

Friendship is a very beautiful thing. It is also useful. Without friendship a man could not borrow five dollars. Dollars have been borrowed at 60 per cent. but still a brotherly love of a certain kind has inspired the transaction. There is a bold sort of philanthropy in cent. per cent. and philanthropy is merely universal friendship.

At the Boston theatre, during a recent Sunday evening religious service, an alarm of fire was raised by the friends of a pickpocket who had just been detected at work and arrested. A panic followed the cry for a moment, but it was soon over, and no serious results followed.

Sales and Sale Bills.

The season for public sales of personal property is now coming on. To those of our readers in Huntingdon county who intend having sales, we would say—do not fail to advertise them in the Globe. It is the very best way of making the sale generally known with the least cost or trouble. The Globe circulates in every township, borough, village or hamlet in the county, and a notice of a sale in its columns is of more value than the printing of five thousand handbills. It goes to the houses of people and just hits those most likely to be buyers.

We are prepared to print bills for vendues, at short notice, as heretofore. Our handbills are beautifully illustrated with cuts, rendering them much more attractive, without costing any more in price. Vendue advertisements can be forwarded by mail, and they will be inserted in the Globe, or handbills printed and forwarded to the parties ordering, without the necessity of their visiting Huntingdon for that purpose. ### On the Wing.

Sale-bills printed at this office.

The Blair county jail has 13 inmates.

A robin round—burglars in Lewistown.

Tuesday next is the memorable 22d. Remember the shooting match.

A man must be very absent minded not to miss his wife after upsetting her in a snow pile.

The editor of the Lewistown Gazette don't like newsboy's pesterings on the passenger cars.

Huntingdon had the heaviest fall of snow in the State; but Old Sol has sent the most of it downwards.

A little child in Altoona, named Stanley, about 22 months old, was strangled to death by swallowing a small screw.

When a man wants to tie his shoes he should not put his feet upon the breakfast table—he may upset and break things.

About a dozen converts to Mormonism have been made in the vicinity of Johnstown, Franklin, county, Pa. That's getting pretty close.

Rev. Thaddeus McRae, formerly of Austin Texas, was recently installed Pastor of the Presbyterian Churches of McVeytown and Newton Hamilton, in Mifflin county.

A lightning calculator man was in town, one day last week. He knew well how to subtract cash from other people's purses and add them to his own.

Mr. James Terry, a former resident of this place, died in Pittsburgh on the 4th inst., aged 56 years. His remains were interred in the Lutheran Cemetery at Hollidaysburg.

The Fulton Democrat has again made its appearance after the recent fire which destroyed all its material, and it now presents an enlarged, readable and handsome appearance.

A colored man in town, who will be a voter next fall if he lives, and pays his taxes like white folks, has the credit of saying, "Bress de Lord, the Fifteenth Commandment is passed."

The Bellefonte Watchman says, "Albert Vanslyke got blowed up by a bursted boiler in Warren county, last week." We don't believe a bursted boiler could do any such thing.

Patrick Sloan, a miner, who was injured by the explosion of powder at the mine near Matilda Furnace, this county, has since died, and his remains were interred in the Catholic cemetery in this place.

Almost every "local" in this neck of timber had something to say about the ground-hog, and although all say he saw his shadow we don't believe one of them saw his hogship to know whether he did or not.

A small but enterprising town in Centre county has a match stick manufactory, that employs 30 persons, mostly females, makes thirty-five thousand sticks per minute, and uses six thousand feet of lumber per day.

The Valentine trade is not so brisk this year; but notwithstanding, we have received our share of the comic. There is nothing like a man learning all about his business, and having others to tell him his faults.

The Bellefonte Watchman told a fishy story last week when it said that Mrs. S. Fish and her infant, living under a bridge, were run over by the cars. If we mistake not the name "fearful accident" happens in this town every day, but nobody is hurt.

Everybody, read Horace Greeley's ideas of Farming on the fourth page of this paper. His views on that subject, which we will publish in succeeding numbers, are of themselves, worth more than $2 to any farmer.—Subscribe for the Globe and you'll have them.

Some fellow attempted one night last week to effect an entrance into Musser & Fleming's law-office, in this place, by taking out the transom. He did not succeed, but he left the marks of his long, dirty fingers above the door, which he is requested to come and wash off.

It is very encouraging when a subscriber tells us that he likes our paper, and his family can't do without it. Such comfort we received from one of ours last week—but unfortunately he is unable to pay up just now, but will do so as soon as he can scratch enough money together.

Mr. J. M. Boring got a ducking in Muddy Run one day last week. He was standing on the side of the new aqueduct, and while leaning over and pointing to some part of it, he felt a sudden shock of rheumatism in his leg which caused him to lose his equilibrium and he fell a distance of four feet into the water.

A chap from Huntingdon the other night, stopping at the Bush House, tried to pinch the gas light out with his fingers, and after failing in that but blistering his "feelers," he swore that "some dam thief stole the wick" —Bellefonte Watchman. That's too stale a joke to palm off on your readers. Why didn't you think of something new for a libel.

We send this week a number of bills to delinquent subscribers, which we hope will receive immediate attention. We know our subscribers don't intend to get too far in arrears, and that is the reason we are letting them know how they stand, and what we expect of them as our friends.

THE ADVANTAGE OF ADVERTISING.—The shrewdest business men the world over have availed themselves of the facilities offered by the press for placing their business fully and explicitly before the public. The result has been, without exception, largely to their advantage. Indeed, a large and successful business can hardly be conducted now without frequent communication with the public through liberal advertisements. Of course it is our interest to say so—but is it any the less the truth because we say it? Do not live business men know it and prove it in their own experience? An advertisement is certainly a general invitation from a manufacturer or trader to the public to give him a call, and the small outlay which it involves cannot possibly be any great consideration to a business man. An advertisement judiciously worded, and inserted in the journal that will give it the greatest direct circulation to those whom it is intended, will assuredly pay. Advertising columns are sometimes compared (rather irreverently perhaps) to Jacob's ladder, reaching from the earth of despondency to the heaven of success. There is much truth in the comparison, as all will admit who have tested the utility of making known their business in the newspapers.

Fire.

A dwelling house in Juniata township, occupied by Harrison Speck, was destroyed by fire on Sunday morning last, about 10 o'clock, together with the most valuable contents. The family had gone to a neighbor's a short time before. The fire originated from a stove pipe passing through the roof. Mr. Speck's loss is not less than five hundred dollars.

ANOTHER—The house of John B. Shenefelt, in Cromwell township, this county, was totally consumed by fire on last Friday afternoon. Its contents were partially saved. The fire originated in the garret from the stove pipe. Loss $2000. No insurance.

—Two fires in one week, entailing a loss of $2500, and both the result of running stove pipes through the roof, should be a sufficient warning to all others to dispense with them at once and erect brick flues. It is a fact that nearly all the fires that have occurred in the rural districts in our county were occasioned by stove pipes. We hope we have chronicled the last. Let none fancy themselves secure because they have escaped so long, for there is great danger in stove pipes.

Statement showing the valuation of personal property, &c., in Huntingdon county:

Valuation, $1,083,252 00; assessment of tax, $2,826 57; half-mill tax per act of May 16, 1861, $490 13; population, 1860, 24,406; taxable inhabitants in 1869, 6,122.

The first of a series of railroad meetings to secure the building of the Lewisburg and Spruce Creek road was held at Pine Grove, Thursday afternoon, 16th inst. Col. B. Ayers was chosen chairman, Jas. Campbell and Capt. Jas. Dunlap, Secretaries, and John Everheart, John Gardner, Mr. Adams, Hon. Wm. Burchfield, David Kreps and Samuel McWilliams, vice presidents. After very interesting speeches from Hon. Geo. F. Miller, and Mr. John G. Love, books were opened to receive subscriptions, and in a short time there was subscribed, in Ferguson Township 354 shares, or $18,700 towards building the road. This looked like work. Morris and Franklin townships in Huntingdon County promise to do their full share and from the spirit manifested at Pine Grove yesterday afternoon we know that Ferguson will. Let the lower Pennsylvania townships do as well, and if the Pennsylvania R. R. Company is in earnest in this matter, there will be no doubt of the early completion of the road.—Watchman.

Isn't It So?

Big stores have no business unless they advertise well, keep an obliging set of clerks, accommodate the public with anything they ask for, sell at small profits, give the worth of the money, and little stores never grow to be big stores unless they can do likewise. Now, we have a big store in our town that strictly follows these rules, and thereby it has become popular and successful, and to-day is having as large a number of customers as any store of its size in the State. This we do not say at random, but it is as true as we write it. It has every facility to do a large business, and sells goods as cheap as the cheapest. We refer to the store of Henry & Co., located between Huntingdon and Portstown, and we would advise our readers who need goods to give the firm a liberal share of patronage. That is all they ask though they expect a fair trial from all.

RACHEL BANN'S POEMS.—These poems were written under circumstances of a peculiar character, and are the product of a mind trained in the school of more than ordinary affliction. During a period of eighteen years the writer was confined to a bed of sickness; her disease being a spinal affection, disabling her from walking or even assuming an erect position on her couch of affliction. What renders her condition still more painful, is the fact that both her parents, whom she ardently loved, and who always faithfully provided for her wants, were, in the providence of God, removed by the hand of death.

Being thus left to herself, with an affectionate sister as her only companion, and secluded from all personal intercourse with society at large, she devoted herself, as she had previously done, to the reading of useful books—books of devotion and science—and to the composition of prose and poetry in both the English and German languages, with a zeal and pertinacity truly astonishing. As the different subjects on which the poems treat, have been a source of rich consolation to the writer in her affliction, the hope is indulged that they will prove equally beneficial to others, in similar circumstances.

These Poems are for sale at Lewis' Book Store. Price $1.75.

WHAT IMAGINATION WILL DO.—On Tuesday last, a rumor prevailed that Houser, the horse-thief, who was recently re-captured at Lancaster, had again made his escape from jail. There were some who believed the rumor, of course, and probably with the view of a handsome reward before them, they started in pursuit, and the snow having fallen, they followed the tracks of a man some distance towards the Warm Springs, where they failed to track him farther, and come to the conclusion that he had gone in the direction of Manor Hill. On returning to the jail, what was their surprise to find the identical Houser safely housed, not having been outside of the jail since his re-incarceration.

The Day Fixed.

The day fixed for the execution of Gotleib Bohner and Albert Bordenbourg, the murderers of the Peightal family, is Wednesday, the 9th day of March. Sheriff Neely on Friday last received the warrant from the Governor, which he read to the prisoners on Friday afternoon. Bohner was writing when the Sheriff came to read the warrant; he looked up and listened until it was finished when he replied "all right," and resumed his writing. Bordenbourg heard it with feelings of remorse and great concern. Preparations for the execution will be commenced shortly.

D. S. Elliott, Esq., editor of the Bloody Run Press, was recently married to Miss Rebecca Harris of that place. Some idea of the gallery and pump that can be got up for an editor at somebody else's expense, may be inferred from the fact that two hundred invited guests (of whom we were not one) congratulated the couple, the eastern markets were drained to supply the tables, a string band was in attendance, and the "light fantastic" was tripped by lads and lasses in their best "bib and tucker" until the wee, sma' hours.

☞ Wanted at the Cassville Soldiers Orphan School, immediately—a lady sewing Superintendent, capable of cutting out all kinds of boys' and girls' wearing apparel, and overseeing the making of the same. Also, an active, industrious and intelligent single man as Male Attendant—to take charge of the boys clothing, dormitory, &c. Also a lady to assist in the cooking department, and another in the washing department. Liberal wages paid for good hands, apply to

2t. A. L. GUSS, Principal.

The First of the Season.

Y. M. C. A. Festival.—The Young Men's Christian Association will hold an Oyster and Ice Cream Festival in the Court House on Friday evening next. An Auction and a distribution of valuable presents will be the attractive features of the affair. The proceeds to be applied to liquidating the debts of the Association, which must be paid. Admission 10 cents.

ACCIDENT.—Mr. Abraham Baker, of McConnellstown, who is employed at the new planing mill, while working at the circular saw, was struck on the chin by a piece of wood, which caused a compound fracture of the jaw, cut his lip badly, and knocked out a tooth. Medical aid was summoned and he is now doing well.

☞ The season is very unpropitious for pedestrianism, but very propitious for Coughs, Colds and Rheumatism—Those who by exposure, or from any other cause, get any of the above afflictions will find panacea in Summers & Reilly's Root Candy, or their superior Castillian Liniment, which is a special cure for Rheumatism and Neuralgia.

While others have talked of education, the citizens of Hollidaysburg have erected a noble building, an institution of learning has been put in successful operation, and many prominent men are showing their appreciation of good advantages by sending their daughters to it.

WHAT I KNOW OF FARMING.

BY HORACE GREELEY.

I.

Will Farming Pay?

I commence my essays with this question, because, when I urge the superior advantages of a rural life, I am often met by the objection that Farming don't pay. That, if true, is a serious matter. Let us consider:

I do not understand it to be urged that the farmer who owns a large fertile estate, well-fenced, well-stocked, with good stores of effective implements, cannot live and thrive by farming. What is meant is, that he who has little but two brown hands to depend upon cannot make money, or can make very little by farming.

I think those who urge the point have a very inadequate conception of the difficulty encountered by every poor young man in securing a good start in life, no matter in what pursuit. I came to New-York when not quite of age, with a good constitution, a fair common-school education, good health, good habits, and a pretty fair trade—(that of printer.) I think my outfit for a campaign against adverse fortune was decidedly better than the average; yet ten long years elapsed before it was settled that I could remain here and make any decided headway. Meantime, I drank no liquors, used no tobacco, attended no balls or other expensive entertainments, worked hard and long whenever I could find work to do, lost less than a month altogether by sickness, and did very little in the way of helping others. I judge that quite as many worse than I did better; and that of the young lawyers and doctors who try to establish themselves in their professions, quite as many earn less as earn more than their bare board during the first ten years of their struggle.

John Jacob Astor, near the close of a long, diligent, prosperous career, wherein he amassed a large fortune, is said to have remarked that, if he were to begin life again, and had to choose between making his first thousand dollars with nothing to start on, or with that thousand making all the land actually accumulated, he would deem the latter the easier task. Depend on it, young men, it is and must be hard work to earn your first thousand dollars. The burglar, the forger, the blacklegg, (whether he play with cards, with dice, or with stocks), may seem to have a quick and easy way of making a thousand dollars; but whoever makes that sum honestly, with nothing but his own capacities and energies as capital, does a very good five-years' work, and may deem himself fortunate if he finishes it so soon.

I have known men do better even at farming. I recollect one who, with no capital but a good wife and four or five hundred dollars, bought (near Boston) a farm of two hundred, mainly rough acres for $2,500, and paid for it out of its products within the next five years during which he had nearly doubled its value. I lost sight of him then; but I have no doubt that, if he lived fifteen years longer and had no very bad luck, he was worth, as the net result of twenty years' effort, at least $100,000. But this man would rise at 4 o'clock of a winter morning, harness his span of horses and hitch them to his large market-wagon, (loaded over night), drive ten miles into Boston, unload and load back again, be home at pretty fair break-fast-time, and, hastily swallowing his meal, be fresh as a daisy for his day's work, in which he would lead his hired men, keeping them clear of the least danger of falling asleep. Such men are rare, but they still exist, proving scarcely anything impossible to an indomitable will. I would not advise any to work unmercifully; I seek only to enforce the truth that great achievements are within the reach of whoever will pay their price.

An energetic farmer bought some twenty-five years ago, a large grazing farm in Northern Vermont, consisting of some 150 acres, and costing him about $3,000. He had a small stock of cattle, which was all his land would carry; but he resolved to increase that stock by at least ten per cent. per annum, and to so improve his land by cultivation, fertilizing, clover, &c, that it would amply carry that increase. Fifteen years later, he sold out farm and stock for forty five thousand dollars and emigrated to the West. I did not understand that he was a specially hard worker, but only a good manager, who kept his eyes wide open, let nothing go to waste, and steadily devoted his energies and means to the improvement of his stock and his farm.

Walking one day over the farm of the late Prof. Mapes, he showed me a field of rather less than ten acres, and said:

"I bought that field for $2,400 a year ago last September. There was then a light crop of corn on it, which the seller reserved and took away. I under drained the field that Fall, plowed and sub-soiled it, fortilized it liberally and planted it with cabbage and when these matured, I sold them for enough to pay for land labor, and fertilizers altogether."

The field was now worth far more than when he bought it, and he had cleared it within fifteen months from the date of its purchase. I consider that a good operation. Another year, the crop might have been poor, or might have sold much lower, so as hardly to pay for the labor; but there are rises in other pursuits as well as in farming.

A fruit farmer, on the Hudson above Newburg, showed me, three years since, a field of eight or ten acres, which he had nicely set with grapes, in rows ten feet apart, with beds of Strawberries between the rows, from which he assured me that his sales exceed $700 per annum. I presume his outlay for labor, including picking, was less than $300 per annum; but it cost something to make this field what it then was. Say that he had spent $1,000 per acre in under-draining, enriching and tilling this field, to bring it to the condition, including the cost of his plants, and still there must have been a clear profit here of at least $300 per acre.

I might multiply illustrations; but let the foregoing suffice. I readily admit that shiftless farming don't pay—that poor crops don't pay—that it is hard work to make money by farming without some capital—that frost, or hail, or drouth, or insects, may blast the farmer's hopes, after he has done his best to deserve and achieve success; but I insist that, as a general proposition, Good Farming does pay—that few pursuits afford as good a prospect, as full an assurance of reward for intelligent, energetic, persistent effort, as this does.—Tribune.

READY ROOFING

Suitable for all Buildings, Dwellings, Barns, Churches Factories, &c., and for all climates; equally adapted to flat or steep roofs, and can be applied by any ordinary workman.

THE READY ROOFING

Is more durable than tin, and does not cost one-half as much. It is cheaper than shingles, far more durable, and fire-proof. It is made of the heaviest fabric ever used for the purpose, and is put up in rolls ready for shipment to any part of the world. Send for circular and samples (sent free.)

We also manufacture

GRANITE CEMENT,

For repairing all kinds of leaky roofs, chimneys, sky lights, &c. This Roofing Cement forms a permanent adhesive coating over the whole surface of all roofs, whether tin, shingle or composition, completely closing up leakages, and being composed largely of ground granite, which sets and hardens, and soon becomes an artificial Slate or Stone covering.

ROOF PAINT,

For coating Tin and all kinds of metal and composition roofs. It will not run, crack, or peal off, but form a permanent and perfect protection, wherever placed. It is furnished at half the cost, and possesses twice the durability of the common oil paints used for such purposes.

County rights for sale.
